Evacuation Plan

During a fire, the feeling of panic clouds good judgment, and this is often when unfortunate incidents occur. But there are ways you can help. The smoke detector is an important element, but it's not enough. You also need to plan how to get out of your home. To do this, you and your family need an evacuation plan.

This plan can save lives. How many times have we heard in the media of people trying to get back inside the burning house to look for a family member? This could be avoided with good planning and, above all, an evacuation plan. When was the last time you practiced your evacuation plan, if you already have one?
